

California Proposition 65 Information

Last updated: 2026-04-06

Altera is committed to protecting people, property, and the environment and complying with all applicable product regulations.

In compliance with the State of California Proposition 65, Altera will label impacted products with the appropriate labelling. For products sold through Altera managed websites, the appropriate label will also be visible at point of sale.

A warning label is required when frequently handled parts create a potential exposure pathway to listed chemicals during normal use, including through skin contact. Altera FPGA products are not finished goods and are not intended for direct handling by end users; therefore, they are considered out of scope for such labelling requirements.

To determine whether a product could contain California Proposition 65 chemicals above safe harbor threshold, please refer to product packaging. Chemicals contained in the current IEC 62474 Declarable Substance List will also be declared on the IEC 62474 Material Declarations Data Sheets for those products that contain such chemicals.

Altera will continue to monitor the applicable regulatory requirements, including annual updates to the Proposition 65 List, as part of our on-going compliance activities.
